

Four of the 21 Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission Roadside Markers in Wilkes-Barre (Facebook post, August 29, 2022 by the Wilkes-Barre Preservation Society):

The D&H
owned the Baltimore mine in the nineteenth century

Jesse Fell's tavern (which was built in 1787 and which he called "The Buck") was demolished in 1905.

In 1906, a rather generic three story hotel, called the New "Old Fell House" was built in it's place. That building was demolished in 1986.

The marker is located in front of the GUARD Insurance Building (the old Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal Company Building) at 16 South River Street.